New Steamship Line Coming

Portland is at last to realize her dream; for years the Chamber of Commerce of that city has been spearheading for a Steamship line to ply between that point and Alaska ports, they finally succeeded in getting the right kind of bait and have landed their quarry.

The Pacific Steamship Co., will operate three boats on the run, the first sailing not later than March first. The new line has made arrangements with the White Pass & Yukon Ry., for the transportation of through passengers and freight over their system. The new steamship line will cut in heavily on the Puget Sound lines operating in Alaska, as well as wholesale houses of Seattle and Tacoma. Seattle has had pretty good pickings in Alaska heretofore, therefore the new line of transportation to Alaska is bound to be a thorn in her side; it is to be hoped that the Portland enterprise will be the means of making the Seattle parasites come to their milk and break the Seattle spirit of which Alaska has been the victim for years.

It is to be hoped that the new line will benefit this town in particular, Wrangell has always been the goat of the steamship line and a majority of the petty officials of these lines have always had their little hammer out knocking this town, despite the fact that they have used it plenty, Wrangell has thrived.

Seattle will lose the salmon packing business which is controlled by Oregon interests, which amounts to a nice rich slice. The Pacific Steamship Co., will use the Puget Sound rates, which will put the Portland firms on the same basis as those of Seattle. The points of call will be, Prince Rupert, Ketchikan, WRANGELL, Petersburg, Juneau, Douglas, Haines and Skagway. The new line is bound to be a success and Portland is about to reap her harvest, the results of year of persistency.

Letter From Old Timer

A few days ago L. C. Patenaude received a letter from W. H. Richardson who is at Chathenda the new strike. Billy lived in Wrangell for a number of years all the old timers know him. Billy has been chasing rainbows ever since he left Wrangell, he just came out from the Kuskukim country where he has spent the past four years in pursuit of the elusive yellow. He says he was the proud possessor of a Road House on the Seward-Iditarod trail four years ago which experience cost him about seven hundred bones before he got wise to the fact that he wasn't educated in roadhouseology. Billy thinks the Iditarod trail is a bugger, he says he was caught in a snow slide between Knik and Turnagain Arm and just as he was about to kick in he was praying to God for forgiveness for the sins he had committed at Wrangell, when fortunately two parties happened along and dug him out before he croaked. The only thing that saved Billy was the fact he mentioned Wrangell in his prayer. Billy says he is just as cranky as ever but now that he got the first call for dinner at the heavenly table, he has learned a lesson and intends searching the scriptures and incidentally cultivate the art of smiling. When Billy gets his wad he is coming to Wrangell to shoot it, but not on logging outfits.

EDITORIAL

Now that President Wilson has declared himself and demands the opening of Alaska we see a faint glimmer of hope in the distance. God knows Alaska is greatly in need of transportation facilities, we know transportation is the key to the promised land. What we want is a railroad which will open up our broad rich valleys for agricultural purposes, as soon as this is realized then will we get the horde of emigrants from Europe and it will also attract thousands from the states, we have the land but no facilities of reaching it. Our hills and valleys are productive, the experimental stations have proved what can be done in Alaska, even here in our home town we have grown all kinds of berries and vegetables which compare favorably with those of southern climes. Thousands of people who are merely existing and working for starvation wages in the East would be only too glad to reach this Northern Garden of Eden where plenty abounds. Our woods are full of game, the hillsides are covered by a bewildering profusion of berries and our waters are just teeming with fish but our atmosphere is exhilarating and we are surrounded by an environment that breeds robust and happy people. Alaska has at least sixty four million acres of farming and grazing land which is capable of supporting at least three or four million people by farming alone, all this land will be available to the settlers as soon as we have the transportation facilities. The great crying need of our country are railroads and trails. Since the time Baron Wrangell located on this island, which was subsequently named after him, and established himself at this point, there has never been a trail cut from the town limits, excepting the trail that leads to the A. P. A. cannery which is about a mile long and merely an excuse for a trail. Last year the Chamber of Commerce took up the matter with the Road Commission in regard to having a trail cut from the Garnet Ledge to the head of Cottonwood Island; we got it—nit. Travellers going up the Stikine still have to endanger their lives in the crushing ice and heavy seas at the mouth of the Stikine River in winter time.

We acknowledge the fact that there are parts of Alaska that are barren and uninviting but it is not all the land of snow and desolation. Southeastern Alaska is the hunters' paradise both in winter and summer, our winter is nearly over and everything is still green, in the gardens about town there are still flowers in bloom, we live in the land of sunshine and smiles. Write and tell your friends about it, place the facts before the ignorant public who have always associated us with polar bears and icebergs, let them know we have the finest and best climate in the world, we are close to sea level and the influence of the Japan Current moderates our climate. In summer it is not too dry nor too hot and in winter it is delightful, if they don't believe it send one of the pictures that was taken on New Year's day on the Courthouse Square.

That non compos mentis editor of the Boston Herald must have taken a short course at some Nut College in the East, probably Mattewan. He says Alaska has been "looted of its only possession—gold," and now it is "the desolate waste of yore." The poor shrimp little he knows about God's country he is probably one of those stiff who has never been beyond the limits of the city in which he exists and spends his Sundays on the Common. He states in his editorial that "any attempt to resuscitate Alaska would be as hopeless as pouring gold dollars into the shaft of its abandoned gold mines." He had a beautiful dream of Fairbanks, the population of which, he says, fifteen years ago was 18,000 inhabitants, he is good on figures but he handles facts rather carelessly. He ought to knock his brains out against a rock and pray to God for a new set. He also states "the natural resources of Alaska are a joke." If that pin head editor would walk into one of our canneries and see one day's catch of fish, he would wilt in his tracks, he would see more of the finny tribe in that same day than he would see if he hung around T wharf for two months.

He knows nothing about the $4,000,000 in gold that was taken out of the Tanana alone in 1913.

He calls our towns "decadent and rotten" and that the "loose living and consequent disease are beyond description." Thank God the imaginary disease does not effect the brain, which seems to be the defucalty with the Bean City editor. That guy is hollering up the wrong stump. "Forgive him Lord; he knows not what he says."

Some Notes on "Origins."
"Humpty Dumpty Sat on a Wall," etc., has come down to us from the days of King John. "The Babes in the Wood" dates from the fifteenth century, being founded upon facts, an old house near Wayland Wood, Norfolk, having the whole story in carvings on a mantelpiece. "Little Jack Jorner," "Little Miss Muffet," "Old Mother Hubbard," "Mother Goosey" and "Goosey, Goosey Gander" are each traceable to the sixteenth century. "Pussy Cat, Pussy Cat, Where Have You Been?" belongs to the reign of Queen Elizabeth. "Three Blind Mice" first appeared in a music book dated 1600. "A Frozgle Would a Woong Go" was licensed to be sung as far back as 1609. "Boys and Girls Come Out to Play" and "Lucy Locket Lost Her Pocket" both hail from the period of Charles II. And, last of all, "Old Derella," "Jack the Giant Killer," "Bluebeard" and "Tom Thumb" were published by their author, Charles Perrault, in the year 1697.—London Notes and Queries.

Palestine Children at Play:
In Palestine, as always, according to a contributor to Chambers' Journal, children's play is mostly "making believe" that they are grown up. You may see a mite of five or six paying a visit of ceremony to a pasha of equally tender years, exchanging such compliments with him as "Rest, I pray you!" "Nay, he who sees you is rested!" and finally backing out of his presence, while he gathers up handfuls of dust and sprinkles it on his head. Holding a law court, with melon seeds to represent the bribes, is a popular game, and so is a raid of fierce men from the desert. The selling of Joseph and his subsequent interviews with his brethren are rendered with much dramatic action. Also the afflictions of the man of Uz, with new details, such as Job's wife cutting off her hair and selling it for bread. "Doing bride" is naturally the chief amusement of the Moslem girl, as it is the one great event of her later life.

A Pessimistic Friend.
Hewitt—I am a proud father. Jewett—You'll get over your pride when the child grows up.—New York Press.

TEDDY'S CREED

Teddy the "Big Stick" struck Peru the same day the earthquake shook things. It was shake enough to have Teddy arrive much less the earthquake. The Moosers, which by the way are not the "Moose," idolize the Big Stick and are very attentive to him and everlastingly pray for him that he may be delivered from the hands of the G. O. P. and the Democrats. If you are a Moose and faithful to your party you should repeat the following daily:

"I believe in Theodore Roosevelt, maker of noise and strife, and in Ambition his only creed (My Lord). He was born of the love of Power and suffered under Bill Taft; was crucified, died and buried. He descended into Africa. The third year he rose again from the jungle and ascended into favor and sitteth on the right hand of His Party, whence he shall come to scourge the living and the dead.

I believe in the Holy Outlook, the big stick, the Ananias Club, the forgiveness of political activities, the resurrection of Presidential Ambitions and the third term everlastingly. Amen; Amen; Amen.
